iOS 17 adds a great time-saving feature to Notes — here's how it works

By Philip Michaels published Aug 5, 2023 - Tom's guide You can now add cross-links between your notes on the iPhone Linking notes in the Notes app on your iPhone is one of those features you'd never realize that you truly needed until the first time you give it a try. Then you'll wonder how you ever lived without this capability.

The feature makes sense, though, given the way a lot of us have come to us Notes on the iPhone. The app is a place to jot down thoughts, make lists and assemble ideas, but it's also a great research tool. And sometimes that research is interconnected, so it's helpful to link related notes, letting you jump back and forth between related ideas.

That's precisely what the new iOS 17 update allows you to do. A new feature in the Notes app makes it simple to add links between different notes that lets you move from one note to the other with just a tap. iOS 17 doesn't arrive until the fall, but if you install the iOS 17 public beta, you can try out the feature now.

It's pretty simple to link notes in the iOS 17 Notes app once you know the proper method. And that's what we're here to show you what to do, since the command for doing so isn't immediately visible in the Notes app.

In this example, we're going to link notes related to a trip to Europe — one note that lists potential river cruises and another that lists activities in a given city. To link notes, you'll need at least two existing notes, as you can't create a link for a note thats not already created.

Here's how the process works.

1. Find the note where you want to place a link

In the Notes app, open the note where you want a link and find the place in your note to add that link.

Here, we'll open the list of river cruises and add a link to the Norway to Barcelona section.

2. Add your linked note

In the note itself, tap the right arrow key (>) twice. From the pop-up menu that appears, select the note you're linking to. The title of that note will appear as linked hypertext, with a Note icon next to it.

In this example, we've picked the Barcelona Sights note, which is now linked to our river cruise research.

3. Add a link back from the other note

If you want cross links between your notes, simply tap on the link you've just created. That will take you automatically to the other note. Repeat step 2 above to add a cross link back to the other note.

And that's all there is to it. Linking notes is one of my favorite time-saving new features in iOS 17, and I bet it will be one of yours, too.
